In the upcoming game Marvel's Spider-Man: Miles Morales, you'll be able to pull off an impressive phone trick just like Miles does in the movie Into the Spider-Verse. The trick involves Miles casually playing with his phone while web-slinging through New York City, making it look cool and stylish. You can find a list of air tricks in the game's main menu, but the phone trick is not explicitly listed. To perform this Easter egg, you'll need to know the right button combinations. To set up the phone trick, make sure Miles is facing you by having him approach a tall building ledge or build up enough momentum while web-slinging. Once he's in position, press R2/RT and then perform the necessary button combination to initiate the phone trick. If done correctly, Miles will dive through the air, mimicking his pose from the movie. You can also earn some extra XP by chaining together different poses while swinging. to unlock gadgets in Marvel's Spider-Man: Miles Morales on PC, you can try using a keyboard and mouse. This setup allows for customizable controls, which might be helpful if you're not used to the default configurations. The Phone Trick, or Check It Dive, is done by holding down on the L3/LS stick while pressing Square/X. When playing Marvel's Spider-Man: Miles Morales, players can perform various actions such as switching poses, swinging, hitting the ground, and more. By beating the regular game, they can unlock the actual Spider-Verse suit for Miles, which has a 'Vibe the Verse' Mod that makes him move like the movie characters. This mod can look odd in gameplay but when combined with the suit and Phone Trick, it makes the game feel more authentic. It's close to an official Into the Spider-Verse game.
